Eric Page

The world around us is changing rapidly, and with that we must prepare ourselves and those we love to encounter those changes with wisdom, understanding, and tact. In this beginner's class students will be taught how to identify, avoid, and/or react to possible threats through situational awareness. They will also be introduced to responding to an aggressor and how best to handle different situations. These techniques will be taught through memory games, group discussions, videos, and partner on partner training with pads/cushions. As an intro course we will not focus too much on strikes or attacking but defense of ourselves and others.
